

Student Name

Brady Allen

English 1100

7 October 2014

Heavenly High Quality: Thanks to Sony

Most people don't want something jammed into their earhole or have something swallow their ear and try to suction it off their head. This would be unpleasant, to say the least. However, this is what many earbuds and padded headphones do. Maybe the person who only uses headphones only occasionally wouldn't care as much, but people who use them often—for music, audiobooks, maybe binging Netflix on a device in the presence of other—would. Comfort is certainly something the frequent user would look for in headphones. Of course, sound quality and reliability/durability are important, too. One set of headphones that definitely meets these qualifications is the Sony MDR-V150. They're pillows on your ears that let the angels sing crystal clear notes to you for a long, long time. Okay, maybe that's an exaggeration, but they are comfortable, have excellent sound quality, and they are rugged and will last a long time.

Commented [BA1]: Great hook!

Commented [BA2]: Context and audience.

Commented [BA3]: Criteria.

Commented [BA4]: Qualitative thesis statement.